

A teen aged boy presented with spontaneous intraventricular haemorrhage. CT angiogram showed small aneurysm in trigone of right lateral ventricle. The aneurysm was excised through right parietal cortical approach. The major intracranial arteries are showing areas of segmental narrowing. Could this be Moya Moya disease?